I have always taken my route to work via Madingley Hill so have experienced the slow transit down the hill for many years. However of note, just before COVID-19 hit, I noticed a substantial improvement in the journey time down the hill at the time the A14 improvements were completed ahead of schedule. In discussion with people at work who came into Cambridge from the Huntingdon areas, they said this reduction in traffic on the hill was because cars no longer had to take rat runs through the villages to avoid the A14 congestion. Instead they said that now the fastest route for them was to come straight down the A14 and to avoid the A428 completely.

I wish you every good luck in getting people out of their cars and instead onto a bus that drops them on the outskirts of Cambridge where they will then have to board another bus get to their work destinations like the Biomedical Campus or the Cambridge Science Park. I doubt they will I'm sorry to say. And if there is the option instead to take a train, that is what they will prefer.

Kind regards
